Join the Community Discussion on Hepatitis Awareness Month

May 3, 2015 By Lucinda K. Porter RN

In observance of Hepatitis Awareness Month, in May I will post to this blog daily, suggesting ways we can help raise awareness about issues surrounding hepatitis C.

Please put this on you calendar for tomorrow, Monday, May 4, 2015 at 2:00 pm Eastern:

The National Viral Hepatitis Roundtable (NVHR) will hold a special call in partnership with Hep B United for community groups to discuss plans for Hepatitis Awareness Month and Hepatitis Testing Day activities and events. The call will feature a presentation by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) about resources for hepatitis B and hepatitis C awareness activities, followed by a discussion and sharing of best practices among participants.

Anyone planning events in May, or groups planning activities in July for National African American Hepatitis C Action Day or World Hepatitis Day, is encouraged to participate in this call.
