Day 13 - Bugs and Banoffee Pie

February 25, 2013 By Gemma Peppe

Now my headache has gone I wonder if I'm on the placebo or not.

I feel sick after I take the pills but that could be because of necking a bellyful of tablets. I have been absent minded but I don't think that's a side effect. As well as the Oyster mishap, I paid to park my car via my iPhone and put in the wrong location number. I lost a carpark ticket that I'd put away safely. I've been trying to speak and not making sense. My son says I'm like a simulation of a person, like someone has built a robot but when I speak I Error, Error comes out instead of the right words.

On Saturday I was tired so I spent the day on the sofa. On Sunday I felt completely normal so I cleaned the house and made a pie. Today I feel rubbish so I'm on the sofa again. I feel like I've got a bug which would mean that I can't be on anti-virals surely? I'm not sure about that.

The pic is the banoffee pie I made. It's way too big for us to eat it all. I've been told to eat lots of fat.

This entry was originally published on February 25, 2013 on The Hepatitis C Trust. Reprinted with permission.

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.