

My Hepatitis C Blood Tests

June 5, 2015 By Greg Jefferys

Well I went in and had the little vials of blood withdrawn, via a syringe, from my arm yesterday. The irony was not lost on me that the reverse process was how I got this damned disease forty years ago.

Anyway, the blood has been taken and is being shipped to Queensland where the viral load and enzyme tests will take place. Results will take about ten days, so the end of next week I will see how the Indian pharmaceuticals are doing their job.
