HEP is Raising Awareness

May 2, 2016 By Lucinda K. Porter RN

In observance of Hepatitis Awareness Month, I am posting to this blog daily, highlighting websites and organizations that are doing remarkable work educating the public, raising awareness, and making a difference in the lives of those affected by viral hepatitis. I suggest you visit each site, and find out what they are doing, how you can stay informed, and possibly help with their efforts.

Although there are many great hepatitis-related websites to choose from, HEPmag.com is one of my favorites. HEP is current, well-researched, and expanding. (Full disclosure, I am a contributing editor and blogger at HEP.) Be sure to check out:

- HEP Forums
- HEP Bloggers
- HEP Stories
- Visit the community calendar to find out about Hepatitis Awareness Month events
- Read the latest e-print issue of HEP, find out the latest news, stay current about research presented at conferences, and gather information via slideshows and HEP TV.
- Learn more about hepatitis at HEP Basics, get your questions answered at Ask HEP and express your opinions at HEP's surveys and polls.

And if you still have time to explore the site, you may find a few more things of interest…
